Dear Hiring Manager,

I am excited to apply for the enterprise software leadership role at your company, where complex technology, go-to-market execution, and measurable business outcomes intersect. With 15+ years leading business automation, AI, content services, RPA, and digital transformation initiatives across Canadian and global enterprises, I bring a rare combination of technical depth, sales accountability, and executive-level customer engagement.

In my current role as Global Sales Manager for IBM Business Automation Software, I manage a $120M pipeline while driving 105% quota attainment and 3% year-over-year growth across AI-driven workflow, content services, decisioning, and RPA solutions. I have built go-to-market motions across direct, sell-with, and sell-through partner models, increasing partner-sourced revenue by 5% across five territories. By improving forecasting models, coverage optimization, and deal governance, I increased forecast accuracy by 20% and shortened average deal cycles by 30 days, while seller enablement initiatives improved per-rep productivity by 25%.

My background also includes deep technical pre-sales and solution architecture experience across Canada, where I led technical sales strategy for IBM Business Automation and ECM, contributing to $17M in total contract value across 11 deals and achieving an 85% proof-of-concept-to-close conversion rate. I have delivered bilingual executive briefings and technical presentations to business, IT, and C-suite stakeholders in financial services, government, and Crown corporation accounts, consistently translating complex platforms into clear ROI, risk reduction, and productivity outcomes.

Earlier in my career at Novartis Pharma Canada, I led national technology deployment initiatives impacting 700 to 1,100+ employees, managing budgets from $30K to $1M and reducing support-ticket volume and deployment defects by 50%. That experience strengthened my ability to align technical execution, stakeholder adoption, and enterprise change management—skills I continue to apply when helping organizations modernize operations through automation and AI.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my experience scaling enterprise software revenue, enabling high-performing teams, and positioning automation solutions for executive buyers can support your company's growth objectives. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Jean-Jacques Boileau
